The interlanguage shows and explains that various speech organs in it or in this sound understand the teeth and tongue of the lips. Speech organs help a child to see the child's condition and to master the correct pronunciation. When teaching children the correct pronunciation, a variety of exercises are carried out separately on letters that they cannot say. Forming the correct pronunciation of the harsh sound "I" demonstrates the educational sound articulate and invites children to see it, it pronounces the sound several times, and then the children repeat it.

Some sounds involve working on the pronunciation of hard and soft, loud, and loud brothers in the formation of pronunciation.
