"When we talk about the family, first of all, we recognize that the family is the center of education that ensures the eternity of life, continuity of generations, preserves our sacred traditions, and at the same time has a direct impact on how future generations will become human beings. Our first president, I.A. Karimov, stated in his 1997 lectures entitled "Family welfare - nation welfare".

The fact that a child grows up and matures in a healthy environment has a positive effect on the educational process. A healthy environment is like oxygen for a child. If a child does not breathe in a healthy environment, if he does not grow up in a healthy family, the factors that threaten his future will increase. This situation has a negative impact on the development of society over the years. The human child is a conscious being. An educated person is the highest form of a conscious being.

For a human child, the family is the main place, a happy and dignified place where he gets ready for life. If we connect its characteristics and qualities, the fact that a person receives physical and spiritual strength and education with the family, we feel that its contribution to marriage is extremely great. In our country, the family is a part of the society, therefore, the stronger and more complete it is, the faster the society will develop. There is such a quality in the psyche of a human child that he never forgets what he received in the family and always lives in imitation of it. That's why there is a saying in the people: "A bird does what it sees in its nest." Therefore, the child needs a lot of attention.

It is known that our nation is a child, and having many children is a special feature of every Uzbek family. The number of families with many children in our country is much higher than in other regions, more than twelve percent of the total families have five or more children. In rural areas, it is twenty percent. Our country can and should be understood as a big family. If there is no mutual respect and order, if all members of the family do not fulfill their duties, if they do not show kindness and kindness to each other, it is impossible to live well and decently. The family is built on the basis of the laws of life and conscience, it has its centuries-old strong and spiritual foundations, democratic principles are established in the family, and people's needs and values are formed. The main law of the Republic of Uzbekistan clearly and succinctly expresses the state's attitude to the family. In particular, Article 63 of the Basic Law states that "The family is the main link of society and has the right to be protected by society and the state"¹⁴. Therefore, caring for the family is one of the important features of a humane legal democratic state.

It's no secret that family life is the best lifestyle for a person. This is confirmed by some past and present cases. In the ancient East, a lonely person was considered a dervish, a stranger, a poor person. Look at this, according to Italian experts, one out of every five Europeans suffers from insomnia. The reason is loneliness!

If we look at these things with a human feeling, the basis of the concept of happiness is the family. As one of the wise men said, only a happy person is happy in his home.

The family is the child's primary education school. The two sarkars of the family that meant this - the moral and spiritual manners of the father and the mother, their exemplary behavior, good upbringing, education and skills in raising children, knowledge, sensitivity and demandingness, nurtured the children from a young age. It is like a reflecting mirror. In this, people ask: "Whose child are you?" when they ask, the goal is to know how a person was brought up.

In our people, there are proverbs such as "A bird does what it sees in its nest", "Protect a child from youth and a sprout from its head", "A mother cares for a child, a child cares for it", "A child is dear - his manners are dearer than him". how they are brought up, grow up, grow up, how their character is formed, first of all, it has a positive or negative effect on how parents raise their children, how they behave, and how they set an example it means that it is directly related.

If the parents do not teach the child what it means to live life from a young age, that it is not possible to earn a living without suffering, that he will face many difficulties in life if he does not have a profession, the child will grow up without knowing the path. he stumbles, gets confused, doesn't know what to do, remains idle, and idleness leads to antics, engages in ugly deeds, manners and education are broken. That is why it is both a duty and a duty for parents to teach the child morals, to make him knowledgeable, and to prepare his eyes in preparation from an early age. Each family has its own and appropriate set of rules for raising a child. It should also be mentioned that these rules can be said to be relatively general, because each child is a universe, each of them has its own personality, importance, mentality, and behavior, so treat accordingly. needed. Therefore, the responsibility, skill, intelligence, and reputation of parents are important in education. A parent should strictly carry out child education in cooperation with pre-school educational institutions, schools and the public, treat all children equally, treat them fairly, take into account the child's age, growth and development characteristics, and at the same time take into account the child's personality. respect, may be demanding towards him, these guidelines, rules are naturally in the family, a regular guide, will give very good results, of course. Also, there are many unique methods and means of educating children's good behavior skills and skills, so that parents know them well in everyday life, and directly use each of them in their place, in moderation, for the purpose. very necessary. These include: teaching by example, teaching good behavior, getting used to good behavior, admonishing when appropriate, giving firm reprimands, temporarily not talking to the child, changing the attitude towards them, persuasion, public influence. , encouragement and condemnation are such techniques. Every parent, paying attention to positive or negative changes in child upbringing, changes such theoretical and practical rules and follows them, it will be the same. After all, raising a child in a family is a very delicate and complex issue, which requires a great knowledge of manners and great educational skills from parents. One of the main conditions for proper upbringing of children in the family is unity in education. In this regard, parents, seniors and juniors in the family should all come together and act. There should be unanimity in everything: in dealing with children, encouraging and punishing them, using other means of educational influence. Usually, the father forbids what the child's mother or grandmother allowed, or the mother rejects and breaks the punishment given by the father, if the grandmother praises the child's behavior, the father scolds him for this behavior, etc. Such insanity, first of all, destroys the child's education. In such a situation, the child gets used to finding a way between a demanding father, a compassionate mother, and an indifferent grandmother. Sensing carelessness and discord between adults, a child learns to cheat, cheat, beg, and flatter.

When you love a child intelligently, when you pay attention to his interests, when you know the demands and needs of this age, this action allows parents to raise a spiritually and physically perfect person. Such a child, in turn, loves and cares for his parents. This is not surprising. Because the way we love children, their psyche, their inner world, and their attitude to the environment will be formed in this way. An important condition of education is that parents treat all their children equally. This factor causes siblings to be harmonious, kind to each other, consistent in the family, increases the prestige and respect of parents in front of the child, makes them treat their peers and other people well, they are right teaches to care about.

Child education is very delicate, it requires constant and regular practice without wasting time. Parents are the most respectable and honorable people for children, so children always imitate their parents with envy. Because of this, parents must be an example to their children at all times and in every way. In the family, the relationship between children and parents is based on their mutual respect and trust. Usually, children consider their parents to be their closest advisers in all their affairs. Even when faced with difficulties, they are the first helper when solving the most difficult problem. A true friend for a child and a dear person who shares his joys and worries is a parent.

This will be the case if parents are interested in the child's studies and manners, and seriously follow the requirements, advice and assignments of the school and the teacher. This is important for the child to study well and be disciplined. Otherwise, that is, if the preparation and conduct of the lesson is left to the child's discretion, then the child does not prepare the lesson, spends the day in vain and stays late. Therefore, it is the duty of parents and every family member to monitor the child's preparation for lessons on time.

How children are brought up depends on the environment in which they are brought up. Therefore, both youth-childlessness and the beginning of youth-ignorance depend on the education given to children and the education of children. A new person must be a real owner of mother Uzbekistan, a real businessman, a real citizen, in a word, a perfect person.
